Do you workSMART?

Volume 10

What's Your Definition?

As you may (or may not) have heard, WorkSMART Ergonomics Ltd. was recently acquired by SIX Safety Systems. Over the next few weeks, we will continue through a transitional phase as we move towards delivery of more comprehensive services. What does that mean you may wonder?

First let me introduce SIX Safety Systems to you. SIX is the first full service, solutions driven company that addresses ALL aspects of fitness for duty. Traditionally, fit for duty was equated with...well...peeing in a cup!

We're here to redefine the industry.

SIX is composed of safety and human factors professionals that have partnered with world leading researchers, universities, and technology providers to offer a comprehensive approach to fitness for duty - addressing drugs & alcohol, fatigue management and human factors performance.

Our goal is simple; we will deliver only evidenced-based and scientifically driven solutions to optimize the workforce. This includes,

- World-class human factors and ergonomic assessments and consulting that directly tie into your existing operational and human resource business systems;
- Comprehensive fatigue risk management services, including risk analysis, development of policies and procedures, worker and supervisor training, and LUCI™, the most advanced, non-invasive and real-time alertness monitoring technology ever developed;
- Expanding our selection of human factors & ergonomic certification workshops and training programs under the new WorkSMART Academy umbrella; and
- The most advanced oral fluid drug detection technology available on the market.

Over time, you will see changes to our website, our bulletins, and of course, a new look for our company. But rest assured, we are only getting stronger. Along with the same great team from WorkSMART, I am thrilled to be a champion for the new fit for duty direction.
